參、心得與建議

一、參加紐約市華埠國父孫中心銅像揭幕典禮,彰顯民主自由之普世價值

查本會於 2011 年致贈國父銅像予紐約傳統僑社,該銅像暫置放於哥倫布公園。紐約市長、中華公所主席及本人在典禮中均提及國父孫中心先生代表的民主、民權及民主之精神,而此銅像之塑立尤彰顯傳統僑社堅固不移的友誼與共同追求之價值信念,永傳於世。13 日紐約華爾街日報(The Wall Street Journal)刊登新聞照片;紐約通勤族報刊 amNewYork 亦刊出報導,文中提及「銅像為臺灣藝術家盧春雄作品,由中華民國(臺灣)致贈」、「中華民國(臺灣)僑委會吳委員長新興亦參加該典禮」等,殊具歷史意義。

二、出席「第二次中南美洲僑民會議」暨「臺灣移民紀念碑」揭牌典禮,緬懷 臺灣移民精神,凝聚中南美洲地區僑胞向心

中南美洲僑民會議宗旨為凝聚當地僑胞情誼、團結僑社、凝聚僑心,進而支持中華民國及擴大宣揚臺灣政經社會進步繁榮實況,以促進中南美地區僑民橫向交流聯繫,協助拓展我國際經貿、文化發展空間。此次會議係繼巴拉圭後第二次召開,並預訂二年後假阿根廷舉行,是項會議已逐漸成為中南美洲聯繫交誼與溝通僑情之平臺,成為當地洲際性主要僑民會議。

另「臺灣移民紀念碑」係為紀念 1963 年 6 戶臺灣彰化務農基督徒共 32 人抵達巴西之移民歷史,本人除參觀灣移民抵達巴西後的第一間禮拜堂(慕德如露教會),並與慕義六家族代表晤談,隨後與慕義市副市長 Juliano Abe、第二屆中南美洲僑民會議出席人員等 150 人見證「臺灣移民紀念碑」揭幕,共同緬懷巴西僑胞移民冒險犯難精神與始終不變的愛鄉情懷。

三、訪視美國紐約、水牛城、羅徹斯特、華盛頓 DC 及巴西聖保羅地區,表達政府關懷僑胞心意,聽取各地僑社建言

本次行程訪視美國紐約、水牛城、羅徹斯特、華盛頓 DC 及巴西聖保羅僑社、 僑校及臺商組織,並與傳統僑團、新興僑團、華文學校及臺商企業負責人 座談,除藉機鼓勵僑胞支持政府作為,同時瞭解海外僑民心聲暨僑界需求, 未來將持續針對僑界資源進行有效規劃及分配,並提升僑胞服務品質。

ernor Steps Up Pressure on Utility

By KATE KIN

New York Gov. Andrew Common is threatening to revoke National Grid's certificate to operate unless the utility presents a plan for meeting the natural-gas demand in its Long Island and New York City service areas.

Mr. Cuomo sent a letter Tuesday to National Grid officials, saying he would start proceedings in 14 days to revoke the utility's certificate to operate its downstate franchise if he isn't satisfied with their response.

The utility stopped gahookups this past spring fo customers in parts of Long Island, Queens and Brooklyn after state regulators rejected a proposal for a new pipeline.

National Grid officials have said the utility's infrastructure doesn't have enough capacity to meet the growing demand for natural gas downstate, where it serves 1.8 million customers.

Mr. Cuomo, a Democrat, said National Grid should have considered efficiency measures and short-term solutions such as shipping in gas on trucks or barges before stopping hookups.

"The essential responsibility for a utility to provide adequate and reliable service is to manage the supply and demand," the governor wrote in his letter. "The very lack of supply you now point to as National Grid spokeswoman Karen Young said the utility would respond to Mr. Cuomo's letter. "We continue to wory with all parties on these critical natural-gas supply issues on behalf of all our customers in downstate New York," she said.

If Mr. Cuomo isn't satisfied vith National Grid's answer, e will ask the state Public ervice Commission to start ne lengthy process of revokland. "If t

"If they can't come up wit a plan to provide future ga supply, we'll find a utility wh can," Mr. Cuomo said Tuesda on NYI. "They're not the onl utility in the world and a lo of companies would like t have this franchise."

Consolidated Edison includes a moratorium on new natural-gas hookups until at least 2023 in its Westchester service area, with utility officials saying more pipeline is needed to meet the area's demand.

National Grid however has state officials, who say the utility is hurting development by refusing to process natura gas applications. State Sei Kevin Parker, a Brooklyn Dem ocrat, said some residents an business owners temporaril discontinued natural-gas ser vice while they complete renovations and then were ur able to turn it back on.

"It's unfair for the community," said Mr. Parker, who chairs the Senate's energy and telecommunications commit-

The Public Service Commission, which regulates public utilities and is reviewing both moratoriums, last month ordered National Grid to reconnect 1,100 downstate customers that had been denied service.

National Grid officials are scheduled to appear at a joint legislative hearing Tuesday in Albany, where Mr. Parker said he would "call them to task."

Alex Beauchamp, the northeast-region director at the advocacy group Food & Water Watch, said he agrees with the governor's criticisms of National Grid, but that the state should push for heat pumps and other efficiency measures rather than trucking in more

"If the governor's at all serious about the climate goals he signed into law, this can't just be about new ways to move fracked gas around," Mr. Beauchamp said.

MTA Caps Paratransit Taxi Rides To Cut Cost

Alex Elegudin, the accessibility chief for the MTA's subway and bus systems, said during an MTA board meeting Tuesday that the authority plans to expand the on-demand taxi service to 2,400 paratransit riders early next year. The pilot currently is limited to 1,200 such riders, who typically are disabled or struggle to access the public-ransit system independently. But because of rising costs, he MTA also plans to ration he service to a maximum of 16 axi rides a person each month, fr. Elegudin said. It also will ap the subsidy of each ride at 15, meaning riders would ave to cover the rest of the are themselves. Currently, the dier pays $2.75 and the MTA covers the cost of the trip.

Disabled riders and their advocates spoke against the changes at Tuesday's meeting.
They said the on-demand service has improved the lives of people who have been illserved by the MTA's traditional paratransit service, which relies on blue-and-white

They pleaded to keep the service, saying that capping the subsidy at $15 isn't realistic. "The arrely taken a taxi

The MTA launched the ondemand pilot program, which allows riders to hail taxis through an app, in 2017. At the same time, it also offered its 50,000 paratransit customers
he ability to hail a taxi elecronically as long as they book one day in advance.

The MTA found that taxi rides for paratransit customers cost about $36 on average, oughly half the average cost of transporting people in a raditional blue-and-white van, sut the service proved so poplar that riders took more trips than usual, leading to spiraling costs.

Between 2017 and this year, the authority's paratransit budget increased about 29% to $614 million, according to transit officials, driven largely by the electronic balling programs.

MTA Chairman Patrick Foye in Monday sent a letter to flayor Bill de Blasio asking the ity to increase its contributions to the program. Under the curent arrangement, the city con-

"This statue is finally where it belongs," Mayor de Blasio said.

One of the most important figures in Chinese history, Dr. Sun Yat-sen, was honored with the unveiling of a statue in Chinatown on Tuesday, his 153rd birthday.

One of the most important figures in Chinese history, Dr. Sun Yat-sen, was honored with the unveiling of a statue in Chinatown on Tuesday, his 153rd birthday.

The sculpture of Dr. Sun Yat-sen is now part of NYC Parks' permanent art and monuments collection, unveiled in the northern plaza at Columbus Park, renamed in his honor. The statue by Taiwanese artist Lu Chun-Hsiung was a gift from the Republic of China (Taiwan).

Mayor Bill de Blasio was joined by Council Member Margaret Chin, a major proponent of the renaming of the plaza in the park, and members of the Chinese Consolidated Benevolent Association. They were also joined by Manhattan Borough President Gale Brewer and Republic of China (Taiwan) Overseas Community Affairs Council Minister Hsin-hsing Wu.

"This statue is finally where it belongs," said de Blasio before a cold and shivering crowd moments before the statue, covered with a red veil, was revealed. "This is a moment to recognize who we are as New Yorkers — a great man in history who came here to this city to build support for the cause of the republic that he would found. He came here to soak in the ideals of this place and its commitment to democracy and that all people matter. We are honoring not only Dr. Sun, but the ideals that he is a great example."

Chin said she fought eight years to rename the plaza for Dr. Sun and bring the statue to its permanent home.

"Since 2011, the community has fought to give the Dr. Sun Yat-sen statue a permanent home in Chinatown, and I am proud that this revolutionary leader's legacy will be memorialized for generations to come through the naming of the Dr. Sun Yat-sen Plaza at Columbus Park," said Chin. "Today, we aren't just recognizing the importance of Chinese American history - we're recognizing the critical role that Chinatown has played within global history."

Dr. Sun Yat-sen was born on Nov. 12, 1866, in China during the Qing Dynasty. Inspired by the American Revolution, Dr. Sun envisioned a free and democratic China and became a pioneer in its reform. In 1911, he and his allies overthrew the regime, ending 5,000 years of Chinese imperial rule.

Dr. Sun lived in Chinatown as he finalized plans for the Revolution and delivered an important speech in New York City to the CCBA in March of 1911.

The sculpture depicts the early-20th century revolutionary figure and founder of the Republic of China in a standing contemplative pose. It is placed on a tapered solid black granite pedestal with a flanged granite base.

Inscribed and gilded in Chinese on the front of the pedestal is the Confucian motto, "All Under Heaven Are Equal" rendered in Dr. Sun Yat-sen's own calligraphy.
